Fortune's Frowns and Smiles.

Mrs. Briggs had made a mistake. She owned as much, herself. And a mistake must be very patent, indeed, before Mrs. Briggs would own to it. For she was one of those high-nosed, domineering females who pretend to an almost superhuman foresight, and believe that they can read character as if it were an open book.

"I never was so disappointed in a girl in my life," said Mrs. Briggs. "I thought she had some grit about her. But, there! I might as well have an old dish-rag in my kitchen as Meta Milton!"

Meta herself, if the truth were to be told, was equally disillusionized. She had fancied that life in the country was all roses, new-mown hay and nightingales; and when it came to getting up before daybreak, churning by the half-hour in a blue-mold smelling cellar, scrubbing kitchen floors and baking hot-cakes for a tableful of shirt-sleeved farm hands, she was completely taken aback.

There were no lanes wherein to linger at dusk (Mr. Briggs was a great deal too careful of his land to let any part of it run to waste), no picturesque old well-sweeps or ivy-clad ruins.

Cabbages grew in rows; onion patches flung their perfume on the air, and directly in front of the main door there was a field of monster tobacco leaves.

"And ef you've got any time to spare," said Mr. Briggs, "you'd better lay it out in pickin' them plaguy big worms off the terbacker, instead o' cuttin' round the country arter wild-flowers!"

Meta had been a shop-girl in a Bridgeport store before she came to her Cousin Briggs'. Her health had failed; the doctor had advised country air, new milk and change of scene.

Mrs. Briggs, on being written to, had unwillingly consented that Meta should spend the summer there.

"She must be a poor creetur, indeed, if she can't earn her board and a little more into the bargain," said Mrs. Briggs, who was one of those griping, grinding taskmistresses who think of trade and profit alone.

But Meta had not passed triumphantly through the ordeal. Perhaps she had not fully regained her strength. Perhaps she had become discouraged with the endless treadmill of work which Mrs. Briggs provided for her.

She was a pale, pretty girl, with fair hair, large, sorrowful blue eyes, and a color that came and went with flickering brilliance.

"And it's my opinion," said Mrs. Briggs, who was in the habit of flying around the house with her head tied up in a cotton pocket-handkerchief, "that she spends a deal too much time a-fixin' up and prinkin' before the glass—white lace at her neck every day and a ribbon bow and white aprons of an afternoon. Checked gingham is good enough for me, and it ought to be for her."

At the end of the first month, Mrs. Briggs told Meta, with engaging frankness, that she had not proved equal to the emergency.

"I guess we don't want you here no more," said Mrs. Briggs. "You ain't got no more strength than a rabbit, and, anyway, there ain't no calculation about you. You may do very well as a store-girl, but you won't never earn your bread at general housework."

Meta sighed.

"But what am I to do?" said she. "Where am I to go?"

"That's your affair," said Mrs. Briggs.

And then she went to take her bread out of the oven.

John Perkins, the nephew of the old deacon who lived in the brick house on the hill, and had more money than the best arithmetician in Yellow Plains could count, came the next day to drive Meta and her poor little trunk to the stage-station.

John had seen Meta at church. He had stood beside her more than once at singing-school; and one night, when the cattle were obstreperous, he had come to the rescue, and helped Meta drive them home.

So, when Farmer Briggs sent over word that his horse was lame, and asked for the loan of Deacon Perkins' roan cob to carry Meta Miltonto the station, John himself had volunteered to act as charioteer.

"Going away, hey?" said John, when they had ridden a short distance in silence.

"Yes," said Meta, sadly, "I am going away."

"Didn't like the folks?" said John.

"I tried to like them," said Meta: "but Mrs. Briggs was not suited with me. The washings were too heavy and it gave me a pain in the side to lift the tubs."

"You do look rather slim," observed John.

And he chewed a straw in silence for some time before he asked with some abruptness:

"And where are you bound for?"

"I don't know," said Meta. "I can't go back to the store because my place is filled up: and it's very hard to get work anywhere at this time of the year. The doctor said I ought to stay a year at least in the country; but Mrs. Briggs has got another girl and—"

Here John Perkins suddenly arrested the course of the roan-cob, and began turning him scientifically around.

"Dear dear!" said Meta, "have we got into the wrong road?"

"No," said John Perkins. "Not as I know of. But if the doctor said you ought to stay a year, then a year you stay."

"But where?" said Meta.

"With us!" said John Perkins. "I've took a notion to you, Meta. The first time I ever set eyes on you, I said to myself, 'Here's the gal for me!' And if you'll marry me, Meta, I'll do my best to take care of you and be a good husband to you."

"Marry you!" repeated Meta, and she looked timidly into John Perkins' honest gray eyes, and then she added: "Yes, Mr. Perkins, I will!"

"Shall we go right to the parson's?" said Jonn.

"I—I suppose so," said Meta.

"It's the best way," said John. "If I begin a job, I generally like to go on with it."

So they were married. Meta went back to Mr. Briggs' house, until her young husband could break the news to his uncle. Mrs. Briggs received the bride with some faint semblance of welcome.

"John Perkins is a likely fellow," said she, "and the deacon is the richest man in Yellow Plains. I will allow, Meta, that you haven't done badly for yourself. If you'd told me what you was calculatin' for—"

"But I was not calculating," said Meta, indignantly. "I never thought of such a thing, until John asked me to be his wife."

"That'll do to tell," said Mrs. Briggs with a dry chuckle.

Meanwhile, John went bravely to his uncle.

"Uncle," said he, "I guess you'll have to spare me a bigger room arter this.

Deacon Perkins, a dried-up, withered old man, with a strong likeness to the chimpanzee tribe, looked up from his account-book with a snarl, which revealed a set of ragged, yellow teeth.

"A bigger room?" said he. "What for?"

"There's at least a dozen rooms in the house you don't use," said John, "and they'd be all the better for being occupied; and besides"—as if this was a mere incidental fact—"I've been getting married!"

The deacon dropped his spectacle case, and as John picked it up and handed it back to him, he added:

"To Meta Milton."

The deacon's little eyes glittered like very small gas-lamps, seen through a November fog.

"You've married her, have you?" said he.

"Yes, sir," said John.

"Well then," said the deacon, "you can take her somewhere else and support her, for I'll never see nor speak to either one of you again as long as I live!"

"Do you really mean it, uncle?" said John.

"Am I in the habit of joking?" said Mr. Perkins, with an ugly grin, that made him more chimpanzee-like than ever. "If you're so very independent, you can go and hang out your flag of freedom at your leisure!"

This was rather hard on John, who had always been taught to regard himself as his uncle's adopted child.

But he was too proud to sue for a rich man's favor.

"Just as you please, sir," said he. "But won't you let me bring Meta to see you?"

"No, I won't!" said the deacon.

"Oh, John, I have ruined you!" said Meta, when he came back to tell the tale.

"Ruined me, puss?" said he cheerfully—"not a bit of it! You've been the making of me. It ain't good for nobody to hang on the coat-skirts of a rich man. I'm more independent now that I have been for ten years. If Mrs. Briggs will let us stay here for a few days—"

"I couldn't, possibly!" said Mrs. Briggs, freezing visibly. "If your good pious uncle discountenances you, it ain't for me to set myself up ag'in his judgement."

"Very well," said John; "Farmer Drake wants a hand to help clear up the maple hills this winter—I'll engage with him. My Meta shall have a good home somewhere!"

When Mrs. Briggs heard that John Perkins had rented the little one-storied cabin by the railroad, and furnished it for his bride, she shook her head forebodingly.

"If Meta can put up with a hole like that, she hain't no proper pride," said she.

But Meta was as happy as a lark.

It was a humble home, but it was her own. And John came home to it every night, with a face as cheerful as the dawn.

"I wish it was a palace, puss, for your sake," said he.

"I couldn't be happier, John, if it was," Meta brightly answered.

"And you don't mind your Cousin Brigg passing you in the street, without speaking to you?"

"Not in the least, if you don't mind Deacon Perkins returning your letters unopened."

"He is an ill-tempered old crab," said John, with a hearty laugh.

"And she," merrily retorted Meta, "is a venomous old gossip."

While the public opinion of Yellow Plains unanimously condemned Mr. and Mrs. Perkins to the poor-house in the course of a brief time.

"He hasn't a cent of capital," said one neighbor.

"And she ain't no management and never had," said another.

"Buys baker's bread, and makes her pie-crust with butter instead o' drippin's," said Mrs. Briggs. "Did anyone ever hear of such shiftlessness? I, for one, wash my hands of them."

Until, one day, Deacon Perkins died sitting in his chair, with his spectacles on his nose.

"We'll go to the funeral, Meta," said John to his wife. "Of course he has left all his money to the Gatawooche Indian Mission, as he always said he would. But he was my uncle, after all."

"Very well," said Meta. "We'll go."

All the neighborhood was there, of course. The richest man in Yellow Plains did not depart this life every day. But every one looked coldly upon the young couple as they entered, and Mrs. Briggs studiously evaded them.

When the burial ceremonies were over, Mr. Briggs sidled up to the lawyer, a fat man, with a shining bald head and a white moustache.

"It's about the mortgage," said he. "That one that Deacon Perkins had on our farm. I do hope the Gattawoochee Indians won't be particular about takin' it up jest yet, because times is hard, and I ain't noways prepared. The interest is a little behind to be sure, but—"

"What have the Gattawoochee Indians got to do with it?" said the squire, crisply.

"Why, they're the heirs, folks tell me," said Mr. Briggs, uneasily twirling his thumbs.

"Not at all," said Mr. Coyte. "The Gattawoochee Indian will was destroyed long ago; and Mr. Perkins never made another. The heir to all the property is the next of kin, his nephew, John Perkins."

Public opinion changed as quickly as only public opinion can do, when this piece of news became bruited abroad.

Every body discovered all of a sudden that they had always sympathized with the dear young couple—that John Perkins was a noble fellow, and his wife Meta one of the salt of the earth.

And Mrs. Briggs came humbly to the redbrick mansion on the hill to see Meta, and beg her to intercede with her husband in their behalf.

"About the mortgage," said she, "that Deacon Perkins had on our farm. It's over-due, and Briggs hasn't been as regular with the interest as I could have wished; but I do hope, Meta, he won't be hard with us!"

It was a bitter pill for Mrs. Briggs to swallow, but Meta did not exalt over her fallen foe.

"Of course he will not be hard with you, Cousin Briggs," said she, kindly. "Are we not relations? And now you must sit down and have a cup of tea with us, and John will send the box-wagon down for your husband to come and spend the evening."

The tears came into Mrs. Briggs' eyes.

"I do feel sort o' faint," said she. "I never slept none last night, thinkin' what would become of us if the old home was took away. But I'm all right now, Meta, thanks to you!"

And she said, when she got home to her fireside:

"If ever coals of fire was heaped on a human head, Meta Perkins heaped 'em on mine this day."

"She's a good gal," said Farmer Briggs—"a good gal!"

The love and affection that exists between brothers frequently begins to exist when they are mere children.

'Will Tommy always be younger than I am?' asked a little Texas boy of his mother.

'Yes, sonny.'

'That's bully. I'll always be able to lick him and take his things away from him as long as he lives.'—Siftings.

Paid in His Own Coin.

William Hosea Ballou narrates in the Chicago Saturday Evening Herald the following romantic story: In the northern limits of the City of New York is a colossal apartment house, whose spacious flats are occupied by many wealthy people. In one of these large and roomy suits resides a widow, whose twenty-five millions certainly entitle her to recognition in the "Herald" list of the lady millionaires of the metropolis, recently published. Dearer to her than her vast possessions is a lovely daughter, gifted with all the wealth of refinement, graces and culture that study, travel and contact can bestow. Not many years ago, a Russian noble was appointed to an important diplomatic mission to Washington. He met the fair American, then just budding into womanhood, and a case of love at first sight transpired. In the first bliss of courtship the noble followed the travels of the family around the world, exhibiting his deep devotion before the gaze of all nations. Far up in the Alps, the widow received an alarming dispatch from New York, disclosing a theft by agent, his flight, and her possible poverty. The Russian was consulted. Instead of offering advice and assistance, he congealed into Russian frigidity.

'I think,' he said to his lady love, 'that as your status has not continued as I found it, we had better part.'

The lady did not reply. She turned her back upon him.

The widowed lady and her daughter hastened to America, and found affairs in a mixed condition, but easy of repair. They spent six months in the West, looking after their estates, and as much more time in the East repairing their fortunes, so that in one year's time all of this former glory was restored. Not long thereafter his Russian highness was sent to this country, as Envoy Extraordinary. Ye paused in New York to rest before proceeding to Washington, and met a cousin of his former love.

'By the way,' said the cousin, 'speaking of the way shattered fortunes are repaired in America, there is the case of a member of our family, Mrs X. She had most of her property stolen and the rest left in a bad condition, but in one year's time she has caught and punished the thief, recovered all her posessions, and is now better off than ever.'

'Where do they reside?' asked the suddenly interested noble.

'At the Y flats. But why do you ask?'

'Oh, I am going there to tell the American girl I will marry her at once.'

That evening an elegant coach drove into the rotunda of the Y flats. A gentleman in evening court dress, decorated in medals and ribbons denoting his many orders, ascended the elevator immediately following a card bearing the title: "Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States of America."

Miss X was seated alone in the drawing room. To the eager Russian she had never worn such loveliness, such stately demeanor. She arose as he bowed to the floor and endeavored to kiss her hand. He fell on his knees and caught the hem of her skirts.

'Forgive me, my dear,' he implored, 'I was not aware of the remarkable changes in the American life. Be my adored wife and you shall never again have cause to doubt me.'

She regarded him coldly a moment and then turned her back toward him, as upon a previous occasion. 'I think,' she said, adopting his own language, 'that since your status has not continued as I found it, we had better part.'

Preacher Davies and King George.

When president of Princetown college, Samuel Davies visited England for the purpose of obtaining donations for the institution, the king (George II,) had a curiosity to hear a preacher from 'the wilds of America.' He accordingly attended, and was so much struck with his commanding eloquence that he expressed his astonishment loud enough to be heard half way over the house, in such terms as these: 'He is a wonderful man!' 'Why, he beats my bishop!' etc. Davies observing that the king was attracting more attention than himself, paused, and, looking his majesty in the face, gave him, in an emphatic tone, the following beautiful rebuke: 'When the lion roareth, let the beasts of the forest tremble; and when the Lord speaketh, let the kings of the earth keep silent.' The king instantly shrank back in his seat, like a school boy who had been rapped on the head by his master, and remained quiet during the remainder of the sermon. The next day the monarch sent for him, and gave him fifty guineas for the institution over which he presided, observing at the same time to his courtiers: 'He is an honest man—an honest man.'

HOW GREELY WAS FOUND.

The story of the relief expedition sent out by the United States in search of Lieutenant Greely and his party, ice-immured in the Arctic regions, is full of interest. Particularly pathetic is this account of how a search party from the relief vessels came across the seven survivors:

At last the boat arrived at the site of the wreck-cache, and the shore was eagerly scanned, but nothing could be seen. Rounding the next point, the cutter opened out the cove beyond. There on the top of a little ridge, fifty or sixty yards above the ice-foot, was plainly outlined the figure of a man. Instantly the coxswain caught up the boat hook and waved his flag. The man on the ridge had seen them, for he stopped, picked up the signal flag from the rock, and waved it in reply. Then he was seen coming slowly and cautiously down the steep rocky slope. Twice he fell down before he reached the foot. As he approached, still walking feebly and with difficulty, Colwell hailed him from the bow of the boat:

'Who all are there left?'

'Seven left.'

As the cutter struck the ice, Colwell jumped off and went up to him. He was a ghastly sight. His cheeks were hollow, his eyes wild, his hair and beard long and matted. His army blouse, covering several thicknesses of shirts and jackets, was ragged and dirty. He wore a little fur cap and rough moccassins of untanned leather tied around the legs. As he spoke, his utterance was thick and mumbling and, in his agitation his jaws worked in convulsive twitches. As the two met, the man, with a sudden impulse, took off his glove and shook Colwell's hand.

'Where are they?' asked Colwell briefly.

'In the tent,' said the man, pointing over his shoulder, 'over the hill—the tent is down.'

'Is Mr. Greely alive?'

'Yes, Greely's alive.'

'Any other officers?'

'No.' Then he repeated absently, 'The tent is down.'

'Who are you?'

'Long.'

Before this colloquy was over, Lowe and Norman had started up the hill. Hastily filling his pockets with bread, and taking the two cans of pemmican, Colwell told the cockswain to take Long into the cutter, and started after the others with Ash. Reaching the crest of the ridge, and looking southward, they saw spread out before them a desolate expanse of rocky ground, sloping gradually from a ridge on the east to the ice-covered shore, which at the west made in and formed a cove. Back of the level space was a range of hills rising up 800 feet, with a precipitous face, broken in two by a gorge, through which the wind was blowing furiously. On a little elevation directly in front was the tent. Hurrying across the intervening hollow, Colwell came up with Lowe and Norman, just as they were greeting a soldierly looking man who had just come out from the tent.

As Colwell approached, Norman was saying to the man:

'There's the lieutenant.'

And he added to Colwell:

'This is Sergeant Brainard.'

Brainard immediately drew himself up to the 'position of a soldier,' and was about to salute, when Colwell took his hand.

At this moment there was a confused murmur within the tent, and a voice said:

'Who's there?'

Norman answered: 'It is Norman—Norman who was in the Proteus.'

This was followed by cries of 'Oh, it's Norman!' and a sound like a feeble cheer.

Meanwhile one of the relief party, who in his agitation and excitement was crying like a child, was down on his hands and knees trying to roll away the stones that held down the flapping tent cloth. The tent was a 'tepik' or wigwam tent, with a fly attached. The fly with its posts and ridge-pole had been wrecked by the gale which had been blowing for thirty-six hours, and the pole of the tepik was toppling over, and only kept in plase by the guy ropes. There was no entrance except under the flap opening, which was held down by stones. Colwell called for a knife, cut a slit in the tent cover and looked in.

It was a sight of horror. On one side, close to the opening, with his head toward the outside, lay what was apparently a dead man. His jaw had dropped, his eyes were open, but fixed and glassy, his limbs were motionless. On the opposite side was a poor fellow, alive to be sure, but without hands or feet, and with a spoon tied to the stump of his right arm. Two others, seated on the ground in the middle, had just got down a rubber bottle that hung on the tent pole, and were pouring from it into a tin can. Directly opposite, on his hands and knees, was a dark man with a long matted beard, in a dirty and tattered dressing gown with a little red skull cap on his head, and brilliant, staring eyes. As Colwell appeared, he raised himself a little and put on a pair of eye-glasses.

'Who are you?' asked Colwell.

The man made no answer, staring at him vacantly.

'Who are you?' again.

One of the men spoke up; 'That's the Major—Major Greely.'

Colwell crawled in and took him by the hand, saying to him, 'Greely is this you?'

'Yes,' said Greely in a faint, broken voice, hesitating and shuffling with his words, 'Yes—seven of us left—here we are—dying—like men. Did what I came to do—beat the best record.'

Then he fell back exhausted.

Then He Sat Down.

They tell a story of Congressman Finerty's experience at a small town in the south of Illinois, where he had been invited to speak 'for the cause.' When the audience was assembled, the Congressman was to be introduced by a prominent resident, a gentleman in an archaic tail coat, who had but imperfectly caught the name of the orator and was a little deaf.

'Ladies and gentlemen,' said the chairman, hoarsely, 'I will now have the honor of introducing to you, and you will have the pleasure of listening to the talented Irish orator whose name is so familiar to the Irishmen of the West—Misther Einnegan!'

Here the chairman felt a pull at his capacious coat-tail, and heard an awful voice whisper, 'Finerty! Not Finnegan—Finerty!'

'Eh? What's that? Oh, yes! Ye see, I forgot! Ladies and gentlemen I made a mistake. The talented young orator who is about to address us, and with whose name we are all familiar is Misther Flaherty!'

Once again the warning pull at his coat-tail, and a voice like a cyclone, struggling to keep itself under control, hissed, 'Finerty! Finerty!!'

The chairman turned as many colors as a school of dying dolphins, while great drops of perspiration bedewed his forehead.

'Ladies and gentlemen, ye will now have the pleasure of listening to the brilliant young orator, whose name is a household word among us—Misther Fitzjijarrld!'

And he sat down, leaving the brilliant young orator to address an audience to which he had been introduced by almost every name but his own.

Grant and the Kentucky Ladies.

The Kentucky women are as enthusiastic about horses as the men. They unhesitatingly place the horses before themselves as the great attractions of the state. I remember hearing a conversation between General Grant and a Kentucky girl at the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange in 1875, when President Grant was visiting the St. Louis fair. A number of ladies were introduced to the President, whereupon he spoke in very high terms of St. Louis, the fair, &c. "You are mistaken, Mr. President—we are not from St. Louis," laughingly said one of the girl, "we are from Kentucky, a very fine state, you know, which possesses three things all men of taste must appreciate." Smilingly, the President asked her what they were. She answered: "We have the fastest horses, the prettiest women and the finest whisky in the world." The President replied: "Your horses are certainly justly renowned; I have some on my farm near here; yourself and party prove the correctness of your second observation, but whiskey is one of the things that require age, and your men consume it so fast that it rarely has a fair chance to become good." The girls thought that if General Grant could not make a long speech he was apt at repartee.

She Had Found Him.

A pretty young mamma, with a little girl by her side nearly as pretty as herself, was being entertained by a male stranger, who had struck up an acquaintance through the usual and always convenient mediumship of the little girl girl. The stranger did all the talking. He was one of these men who think they know everything, but only rarely get a good chance to tell it. The lady answered only in monosyllables. The little girl listened patiently and demurely for a time, and then began to fidget around in her seat. Finally, as the stranger stopped for breath, she said.

"Mamma, you've found one, ain't you?"

"What, my dear?"

'Why, don't you remember what you told papa when he said you'd be lonesome on the cars? You said you'd find some bore to talk you to sleep."

Mamma looked out of the window and the stranger suddenly thought he had better go into the smoking car to find his friend.

New Appointments.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The president to-day appointed James W. Whelply, of New York, assistant treasurer United States, and Charles Derby, of Indiana, minister to China.

IT is said that for the 300 Consulships for which President Cleveland will make appointments, there are no less than 8000 applicants, with the natural consequence that about 7700 of these willing fellows will be left.

BY the new apportionment bills counties are left whole, and that is about the only merit the bills possess. But as to equality and justice, they deserve the condemnation of every fair thinking citizen and Governor Pattison emphatically vetoes them.

A Warning to Councils.

WILKESBARRE, May 29.—The grand jury has indicted the town council of Plymouth for maintaining a nuisance and for neglect of their official duties in not keeping the town in a good sanitary condition. The trial will take place in June. Three deaths occurred to-day.

IN reading the proceedings of our legislative bodies, we must not forget that they have large republican majorities. Whatever bad and worthless laws are made, and whatever time and money is uselessly spent in the present session the majority must be blamed for, of course.

THE manufacture of steel nails has made rapid progress since 1883, in which year this industry may be said to have had its beginning. During last year there were 393,482 kegs of steel nails manufactured, the production of the three leading nail making states being as follows: West Virginia, 204,336 kegs; Ohio, 730,636 kegs, and Pennsylvania, 29,324 kegs. In 1882, this country produced only 18,224 kegs of steel nails.

THE republican journals lift their heads in exultant pride and exclaim "You see, not a cent was missing at the investigation of the U.S. treasury and we were wrongfully blamed by the Democrats." So it is, as far as the treasury is concerned. But how about the discovery of Secretary Whitney, that John H. Russell, spent $900,000 for the repair of the "Mohican" which is about three times for what a new vessel of the same style could be built. There is more than one way to squander the people's money.

The Lutherans at Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, May 30.—At the opening of the General Synod of the Luth. Church, Rev. J. W. Richard, of York, Pa., secretary of the board, read the eighth biennial report of the Church Extension Society. The total receipts for the two years were $77,806.92, a large increase over the amount reported at the last meeting. The amount paid by the district synods on apportionment was $37,472.99. The amount received in response to a special appeal for Grace Church, Chicago, was $10,961.14; for the children's memorial at Kansas City, $3,340·86; for Christ Church, New York, $2,550.48. The Women's Society contributed $7,045 for the erection of a church at Freeport, Ill. The board asked for $50,000 for the next two years.

The treasurer of the Synod reported receipts of $3,561.16.

The order of the day being church extensions, the afternoon was consumed on the subject; $2,200 was raised to liquidate a debt resting on Christ's Lutheran Church, New York. Rev. Dr. Morris, from Baltimore, revealed to the synod the fact that some generous donor had given $20,000 into his hands with which to found a lectureship.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 30, 1885.

By degrees the work of change is increasing its motion, as President Cleveland is putting more of Democratic peremptoriness into his utterances. The result is more pleasing to Democrats, and is not satisfactory to Republicans who of late have been jubilant outside of the departments and more and more overbearing in. Thus far more than 200 changes have been made in the Presidential post offices by Mr. Cleveland, who sees the importance of making changes but is desirous of placing none but solid men and good stayers in positions everywhere.

First Assistant Postmaster General Hay is now at his post and at work. He is a slim, middle-aged man, with hair rapidly changing from black to gray. He has bright, handsome eyes, a fine set of teeth, smiles pleasantly, is quick to see, and acts about as quick as he thinks. To him are referred about all of the minor appointments aud he gives promise, if his health holds out, of letting Democrats know that he is their friend. To the date of May 27th, about 1,500 changes have been made in post offices outside those made by the President, making a total of about 1,700 changes made in post offices generally, Democrats going in as Republicans go out.

Postmaster General Vilas has moved into the elegant house No. 27 Iowa circle, where at night after office hours those who persist in obtaining what they want, find him and explain. He stands the heavy pressure brought to bear upon him by Democrats with good nature, and says that when the harvest is ended Democrats will be satisfied. Of late he has been feeling around pretty lively in old Virginia, and is by his good appointments in that State adding greatly of courage and strength to Democrats. Democrats are being urged to give Democratic papers increased circulation at once, so that in all parts of the country they may know what is going on, especially in Washington city.

In the Treasury Department Secretary Manning has already made over 500 changes, and hundreds more are being marked for n. t. u.—no further use. Manning is the strongest and most daring Democratic politician in the Cabinet. A man of much sagacity, clean in his courage, and decidedly intent on making New York State solidly and reliably Democratic. In appearance he so much resembles President Cleveland that the two are often mistaken for each other. PHONO.

Severe Storm in Lancaster County.

LANCASTER, May 31.—A very heavy thunder and hail storm, accompanied by strong wind, passed over the northern end of this county this afternoon. The wind tore strong trees up by the roots and threw them across the roadways, and in several instances tobacco barns were picked up bodily and demolished. The hail stones, which were very large, fell to an unusual depth.

—A BOTTLE of Curtis' Carmelite Cordial should occupy the handy corner of every travellers satchel. No prudent person will think of undertaking a journey involving changes of climate, diet and water, without first procuring a bottle. It never fails! It never disappoints! Money refunded in every case when a single bottle, as directed, fails to cure any case of cholera, dysentery, cholera morbus, diarrhoea, cramps, pains in the bowels, or any intestinal irritation. The Great Iron Strike.

PITTSBURG, May 31.—The iron workers' strike, which will be inaugurated to-morrow, promises to be almost general throughout the west. Five firms in this city have signed the scale, and will continue their mills in operation. Other mills, it is expected, will close down, thus throwing out of employment nearly 100,000 men. The workmen are cheerful, and assert that the strike will be of short duration, and that its ending will be favorable to them.

Bad Outlook for the Wheat Crop.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Reports received by the "Farmers Review" from all the western and southern wheat growing states, including the Pacific region, indicate that the outlook for winter sown wheat is the worst in ten years, and under the most favorable conditions will fall considerably under the short crop of 1881, when the total product was 380,000,000 bushels. They have received reports from over 3,000 correspondents.

Superior Excellence.

The reasons for PERUNA'S superior excellence in all diseases, and its modus operandi, are fully explained in Dr. Hartman's lecture, reported in his book on the "Ills of Life and How to Cure Them," from page 1 to page 10 though the whole book should be read and studied to get the full value of this par excellent remedy. These books can be had at all the drug stores gratis.

W. D. Williams, U. S. Pension Agent and Notary Public, New Vienna, Clinton County, Ohio, writes: "I take great pleasure in testifying to your medicines. I have used about one bottle and a half, and can say I am almost a new man. Have had the catarrh about twenty years. Before I knew what it was, had settled on the lungs and breast, but can now say I am almost well. Was in the army; could get no medicine there that would relieve me."

Col. E. Finger, Ashland, Ohio, writes: "I am happy to say I have used several bottles of your medicine called PERUNA, and my health has been greatly improved by it. I cheerfully recommend PERUNA to all who suffer with heart trouble, as being an invaluable medicine."

Rev. J. M. Ingling, Altamont, Ill., writes: "My father-in-law, who resides with me has been using your PERUNA for kidney disease, which has afflicted him for forty years and could get no relief until he saw your medicine. I induced him to try a bottle, which he did, and the one bottle of PERUNA and one bottle of MANALIN has given him more relief than all the other medicines he ever used."

Mr. Robert Grimes, Rendville, Ohio, writes: "My wife has been an intense sufferer from chronic catarrh, and after every other remedy had failed she commenced to use your PERUNA and MANALIN. They have helped my dear wife more than anything she has ever used. She has now taken two bottles, and is so much better that she will never quit its use until she is entirely well. It has wonderfully improved her sight. We think PERUNA and MANALIN will cure any disease."

R. Palmer, Pastor of the A. M. E. Church, No. 192 Canal Street, Wilkesbarre Luzerne Co., Pa., writes: "Having used your PERUNA, and by experience became acquainted with its value, I write asking you to please send me five bottles of PERUNA and one of MANALIN by express and oblige, your humble servant."

Cook Bros., Prospect, Marion County, Ohio, writes: "We have a good trade on PERUNA, our customers speak well of it.

—Druggists as a rule are extremely jealous and careful of the honor of their profession, and are loth to praise a medicine which they do not from personal knowledge know to be a meritorious article. They all agree, however, that for smallness of dose, easiness to take, and effectiveness as a worm destroyer, McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders are the best and most desirable vermifuge in their stock, and do not hesitate to recommend them. The Latest Telephone Patent.

An inventor by the name of Freeman has perfected a telephone which he claims is the superior of the Bell instrument. His application for a patent has been pending before the Patent Office for several weeks. A patent for his invention was issued on Monday. His telephone is the exact opposite of the principle of the Bell telephone. The latter is operated by a continuous current of electricity. The Freeman is operated by pulsations caused by the opening and closing of the circuit. It was clearly shown to be no infringement of the Bell telephone, as the patent has been already issued. The Freeman telephone promises to make a fierce opposition to the Bell if the latter does not buy the new invention.

—The four greatest and most desirable properties of a successful medicine are perfectly combined in McDonald's Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillan Alterative. In malassimilation of food and dyspepsia its effects are speedy and happy. For disfiguring humors of scrofula and tetter, the loathsome sores of venereal diseases, the burning torturers of erysipelas, no other medicine can possibly equal it. As a spring medicine, perfect blood purifier, efficient and safe diuretic and aperient, it meets with gratifying favor from the medical profession and the people. An Oil Operator's Failure.

ERIE, Pa., May 30.—Thomas Brown, of the Brown Oil Company, failed today for nearly half a million. This evening judgements for $350,000 were confessed and recorded, representing about three-fourth of the liabilities. Brown was formerly manager of the Star and Eclipse Oil Companies, branches of the great Standard monopoly. He cut loose from the Standard and established oil refineries of his own in connection with a large producing interest at Claredon; but cut rates and the usual tactics of the Standard made his ruin inevitable. A few months ago the crash was expected, but was staved off by the considerate course of creditors. It could be avoided no longer. One judgement confessed is to Orange Noble for $50,000. Brown's property, could it be sold for its worth, would realize about $400,000. It is the largest failure occuring here for many years.

—Messrs. C. F. Deininger and H. K. Luse, of this place, are the manufacturers and agents for Ellison's Ironing and Pressing Board, and have the right of sale in the borough of Millheim, and in Penn, Haines and Gregg townships. Surface Indications

What a miner would very properly term "surface indications" of what is beneath, are the Pimples, Sties, Sore Eyes, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions with which people are annoyed in spring and early summer. The effete matter accumulated during the winter months, now makes its presence felt, through Nature's endeavors to expel it from the system. While it remains, it is a poison that festers in the blood and may develop into Scrofula. This condition causes derangement of the digestive and assimilatory organs, with a feeling of enervation, languor, and weariness—often lightly spoken of as "only spring fever." These are evidences that Nature is not able, unaided, to throw off the corrupt atoms which weaken the vital forces. To regain health, Nature must be aided by a thorough blood-purifying medicine; and nothing else is so effective as which is sufficiently powerful to expel from the system even the taint of Hereditary Scrofula.

The medical profession indorse AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and many attestations of the cures effected by it come from all parts of the world. It is, in the language of the Hon. Francis Jewett, ex-State Senator of Massachusetts and ex-Mayor of Lowell, "the only preparation that does real, lasting good."

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla, and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodine of Potassium and Iron. Its control over scrofulous diseases is unequaled by any other medicine.

—In next week's Journal there will be an announcement of something new and interesting and everybody is urged to pay particular attention to it. It will be an exhibtion and presentation by D. S. Kauffman & Co., Millheim.

—Mrs. John H. Thomas, of York, a daughter of Rev. C. F. Deininger of this place, arrived here last week with her family, to spend a few days at her parents' house on Main street. She expects to return home on Monday next.

—An abundant supply of novelties and fancy goods, such as stamped linen and felt goods, flower pot trelises, puff boxes, powders, toilet soaps, &c. arriving weekly at the Journal store. School books and bags and blank books a specialty.

NEW GOODS.—Mrs. E. J. Brumgard just received a new lot of Millinery Goods, which comprises the latest and most beautiful styles of Headwear ever brought to town. Her prices are moderate and the ladies are kindly requested to give her a call. tf —Next to the cowardly trick of writing anonymous letters comes the contemptible act of secretly posting up slanderous and abusive cards in public places. Such however had been the case in this town one day last week and we are disagreeably surprised at the littleness of some people.

—Our town council passed resolutions at their last meeting making it unlawful to allow buildings to become so dilapidated as to be exceedingly dangerous in case of fire and, sent a thirty-days' notice to Wm. Walker to either repair or remove the old smithy on Main Street. The council makes a step in the right direction in this matter. This town has too many tinder-boxes, making especially Main street, which is built very compactly, an unsafe district.

—Largest stock of ready-made clothing in town at Spigelmyer's.

The Borough School Board organized on Monday evening with the following officers: W. R. Weiser, pres., D. L. Zerby, sec., A. Walter, treas. The financial statement for the year ending June 1st 1885, gives last year's total receipts -$946.80, expenitures $785.50, cash on hand $161.30.

—A communication received from somebody in Aaronsburg had to be condemned to the waste-basket. Once for all we will not publish any correspondence unless we have the true name of the writer and even then we will not allow offensive personalities to appear in its items. What we want is news.

—One of the freight cars of the train reaching Coburn in the morning was entered by thieves between Philadelphia and Harrisburg one day last week and a lot of goods stolen out of store-boxes for D. S. Kauffman & Co., and J. W. Snook, of this place. The exact amount of the theft we were unable to learn.

—Backache, stitches in the side, inflation and soreness of the bowels, are symptoms of a disordered state of the digestive and assimilative organs, which can be promptly and thoroughly corrected by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. As dinner pills, and as aids to digestion, they have no equal. They cure constipation.

—The Quarterly Conference of the U. B. church will be held at Millheim beginning on Saturday, June 6th, at 2 o'clock, p. m. Preaching in the evening by J. B. Daughtery, P. E. Communion services on Sunday morning, at 10½ o'clock, Children's meeting at 2, p. m. and preaching in the evening at 7½ o'clock. All are cordially invited to attend. C. W. RAVER.

From the Lock Haven Daily Democrat:

A BAD DOSE.—While a lady at Andrew Albright's, at Tylersville, this county, was filling a coal oil lamp, a little child of Mr. Albright's, who was playing around, picked up the bottle of coal oil and drank quite a quantity before being discovered. It of course became seriously ill but was, after some effort, restored, to the great gratification of its parents.

—The Millheim H. & L. company gave a fair sample of their speed while pulling the truck last Saturday evening after the parade. When they took the carriage home they started on a run from the race bridge to the hill on Main street, turning the corner at Musser's hotel at a break-neck rate, and showing that they expect to consume but little time in reaching their destinations.

—Kauffman's new store on Main street presented the appearance of a bee-hive during their opening and the balance of Saturday evening. The band rendered some of their best productions, entertaining the many customers of Messrs. Kauffman & Co., who were attended by four or five clerks. These enterprising merchants are now fairly fixed and settled in their fine quarters and seem to be doing a rushing business.

CLAM LUNCH AT THE FIRST NATIONAL.—Next Saturday evening there will be a FREE Clam Lunch at S. T. Frain's hotel on Main street, Millheim, commencing at 8 o'clock, to which the public is cordially invited. Other seasonable delicacies will be dished up and a pleasant time may be spent by all who will attend. The Millheim Cornet Band has been engaged for the evening. Come.

—An alarm of fire on last Thursday forenoon startled the people on Main street and called forth the bucket brigade in a few moments. On closer inspection a wood box on top of the chimney on Albright's smithy was discovered to be on fire. One of the Hook & Ladder boys was already there and at once kicked the burning stuff from off the roof, which proceeding put an end to the fire. Five minutes later and the blacksmith shop would have been no more.

—A party of young folks consisting of the following ladies and gentlemen from Nittany arrived in this town on Decoration day and spent a few pleasant hours here: Misses Maggie and Libbie Hewes, from Virginia, at present visiting their uncle Robt. Holmes, Miss Blanch Holmes, Misses Kate and Mable Shaffer, Messrs. Joe Emerick, Will Holmes, Dr. J. G. Allison. Always glad to see these visitors to our burg. Come again.

—P. P. Barnes, of Logansville, is out in a circular announcing that he has contracted to run a daily stage between this city, Logansville, Coburn and Millheim, beginning on the first of June, and that a new two-horse rig has been built for the purpose. It is a covered wagon, platform springs and in every point calculated for easy and comfortable traveling. Following is the time table adopted, the stage starting from the United States Hotel, where orders should be left: Leave Logansville, at 6:30 a. m.; arrive at Lock Haven at 10:00 a. m.; leave Lock Haven at 1:30 p. m.; arrive at Logansville at 5:30 p. m.; leave Logansville at 6:30 a. m; arrive at Millheim at 11:00 a. m.; leave Millheim at 1:00 p. m.; arrive at Logansville at 5:00 p. m.—Lock Haven Daily Democrat.

—All we ask is your presence. After you examined our stock you will pronounce our store the best place to buy.

D. S. Kauffman & Co.

—Lewisburg boro' will celebrate the one hundreth anniversary of its founding by a grand parade of Firemen, Military, Grand Army of the Republic and other organizations on the Fourth of July. Extensive preparations are being made by the citizens of that borough to make the celebration the finest ever held in Lewisburg. Invitations have been issued to all the fire companies in the adjoining counties and our young company has not been forgotten in the list. The boys are unable to attend however, as they hardly consider themselves in a shape for such occasions.

—The memorial exercises on last Saturday evening were pronounced by everybody the best conducted and most creditable ever witnessed in Millheim. Town was filled with a large and expectant crowd of people long before the hour for the parade had arrived. At 5:30 sharp the procession moved from Penn street, wending its way down Main, then returning up Main street marched to the cemetery. The long column consisted of the Millheim Band, Flag bearer, Veterans, the new Hook & Ladder Truck, dragged by about twenty-five members of the company, the Sunday schools of town, about a dozen carriages and buggies containing visitors from other places, and an endless string of ladies and citizens of the borough. We hear it stated by a spectator that he counted over five hundred people in the procession.

Arriving at the cemetery the solemn and impressive decoration rites were performed by the veterans, company and the schools while the band played one of its fine dirges. Rev. Mountz, Hon. J. P. Coburn and Rev. C. F. Deininger made eloquent addresses to the large assemblage. Our space will not allow us to go into details or give a synopsis of the orations. They were all masterly done and showed commendable research and laudable patriotism.

The procession returned to town in nearly the same order in which they had come and when reaching about the centre of town, the men, stirred up by the lively national airs of our good little band, gave vent to their patriotic enthusiasm in three rousing cheers. At the townhall all were dismissed.

Everything passed off very smoothly and succesfully, the parade was very imposing, the H. & L. boys especially distinguishing themselves by their fine marching and general good appearance and all concerned must have felt well pleased with the success of the celebration. The affair was favored by comparatively fair weather, the wind having partly dried the streets, which had been rendered very muddy from the rain of the proceding day and night.

Neighboring News.

AARONSBURG.

Our town is ably represented at the General Synod, Harrisburg, by Rev. and Mrs. Deitzler, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stover and John H. Musser.

L. D. Kurtz was home over Sunday. Glad to see him.

Among the indisposed might be mentioned D. K. Musser who suffers from general debility; and Miss Mary Musser whose left or right ear (forget which) causes her considerable pain.

Some Nittany Valley folks were the guests of the Misses Minnie and Lula Kurtz during Saturday and Sunday.

The Soldiers' graves were decorated in the P. M. of Saturday. The turnout was very meager.

A great many people from town were to Millheim on Saturday evening to witness the parade. They seemed very much taken with the Hook and Ladder truck.

Howard Homan and apprentices have gone to Lewistown to do some carpenter work. Howard is just the man to put up a first-class job.

The School board had a meeting at Immel's Hotel on Monday. Important business was transacted but the "Boss Tweed" of the board during former years was not present. The amount of embezzlement is something like $889. "How are the mighty fallen."

HAWKEYE.

SMITH TOWN.

Mr. Benj. Limbert and family, from Brushvalley, in company with Wash Shafer, from Carthage, Mo., were the guests of Mr. H. E. Duck on Sunday. Mr. Shafer had crossed the Alleghany mountains fourteen times and his homeward trip will be the fifteenth time.

On Monday part of Grossman's shed was raised and the other part will go up as soon as the lumber can be made ready.

Mr. Sol Kimport and wife were visiting their friends at this place over Sunday.

The farmers complain that the crows are doing mischief in their corn fields.

Miss Alice Bierly is visiting here and intends to stay in our midst for some time. JUMBO.

WOODWARD.

Robert Wolf is now the proprietor of our store, having purchased from C. W. Hosterman last week. Robert is very obliging and will retain the large trade.

The members of the string band, who secured their instruments some time ago talk of getting a teacher and reorganizing.

"Sol" Ettlinger has not yet returned home, though we expect him before long. We sort of envy Spring Mills its notoriety, for "Sol" belongs to us.

ALEXIS.

Spring Mills.

Decoration day was well observed by the people of this place and surrounding vicinity. Notwithstanding the muddy roads and the threatening rain a large crowd assembled at the graveyard in the forenoon to decorate the graves of our fallen heroes. Many other graves were also decorated. The G. A. R. Post assembled in a body and accompanied by the Farmers' Mills band paid proper tribute to their dead comrades.

R. Kline is the boss fisherman of this place. He caught a sucker 18 inches long one day last week.

The new school board has organized with M. S. Rishel, president, Emanuel Zettle, treasurer and J. B. Crawford, secretary.

Mrs. J. W. Bartges, of Penn Hall, while visiting her mother at this place, was taken very sick one day last week and has not been able to return to her home since.

MADISONBURG.

John B. Shafer has treated his house to a coat of paint. If some more of our town folks would do likewise it would add much to the appearance of their homes.

Dr. Lee has made quite a large cistern on his premises.

Mr. Long and Frank, of Millheim, accompanied by their wives, spent a couple of hours on Sunday with Dr. Lee.

Ira Hazel is again able to be out to get a breath of fresh air.

The executors' sale of personal property of the late Jeremiah Hoy was well attended last Saturday.

Decoration day was very quiet here, nothing of any account was going on.

The potato bug, that great nuisance, has again made his appearance.

Reuben Grimm has bought a horse from Fred. Limbert, near Aaronsburg.

Jared Hazel is about ready to raise his stable.

Miss McCan is at present visiting her sister, Mrs. Dr. Lee, of this place.

STILL.

Poe Mills Scrap Book.

Poe Mills, June 2 1885.

To the Editor of the MILLHEIM JOURNAL:

We are having rather cool weather, especially at night, considering the time of year. Nevertheless the trees and shrubs are decked in their summer robes of various shades of green, and the numerous mountain peaks about here, which a month ago presented a very wild and rugged appearance, are now showing forth nature in all her glory, which is grand beyond description.

The large stationary saw mill owned by W. C. McConnell & Co., has been inactive for the past few days while it has been undergoing some slight improvements.

Thomas R. Park, our amiable sawyer, has gone from our midst, and is at present engaged in the lumber business in Dauphin County with his brother-in-law John Sheetz, formerly of the firm of Park & Sheetz of this place.

Harris B. Miller, a well-known and highly respected young man of Millersburg, Pa. has been visiting friends at this place during the past week.

Henry Dunkel anticipates a visit to Halifax, Dauphin Co., Pa. next Saturday, where he will spend a few days with friends and relations.

We learn that Geo. Buck, the obliging photographer of Millheim Pa. will to-day be over to Fowler Station, two miles west of here on the L. & T. R. R., for the purpose of taking views, and judging from work which we have had the pleasure of seeing in the past, we can refer any persons who wish to feast their eyes on some grand scenery, to him, feeling confident that they will be well pleased. Success to you Georgie, is the wish of your Poe Mill's friend.

Messrs. Elliot Hassinger and Geo. B. Baskin expect to leave here for Lewistown, Mifflin Co., on Thursday P. M. where they are going to investigate quite a number of Steam Engines. They will no doubt be prepared to give some interesting points on steam power in next week's issue.

Johnnie Charles, our much thought of shingle sawyer goes fishing occasionally. Yesterday he hooked out of Poe Run quite a number of fine trout, but he saw one which he did not happen to catch. John says it looked to him to be about twenty inches long, but he (John) might have appeared in the eyes of the trout to measure twenty times twenty inches long, at least it must have thought him too long company to associate with, and acting upon its instinct it turned, and left John a lone fisherman on the banks of Poe Run.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

The great popularity of this preparation, after its test of many years, should be an assurance, even to the most skeptical, that it is really meritorious. Those who have used HALL'S HAIR RENEWER know that it does all that is claimed.

It causes new growth of hair on bald heads—provided the hair follicles are not dead, which is seldom the case; restores natural color to gray or faded hair; preserves the scalp healthful and clear of dandruff; prevents the hair falling off or changing color; keeps it soft, pliant, lustrous, and causes it to grow long and thick.

HALL'S HAIR RENEWER produces its effects by the healthful influence of its vegetable ingredients, which invigorate and rejuvenate. It is not a dye, and is a delightful article for toilet use. Containing no alcohol, it does not evaporate quickly and dry up the natural oil, leaving the hair harsh and brittle, as do other preparations.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

Colors them brown or black, as desired, and is the best dye, because it is harmless; produces a permanent natural color; and, being a single preparation, is more convenient of application than any other.

Tact.

A wealthy lady had issued invitations for a dinner party of twelve, and on the morning of the appointed day, when conferring with her head servant, she discovered that one of the twelve silver shells, in which scalloped oysters were to be served, had been misplaced.

Rigid search for the missing article having proved unavailing, the lady decided that, sooner than give up that particular course, she would simply decline oysters when they were handed her, and so the eleven shells would be sufficient.

But when the servant handed her the oysters at dinner she was interested in conversation, and mechanically took them.

If the servant's heart fell in consternation at this, he gave no external sign of it, but, speaking in terms distinct though low, said, respectfully:

Excuse me, madam, but you said I was to remind you that the doctor forbade you eating oysters.'

His mistress laughed, and returned the oysters, saying in explanation to her guests:

'I am so absent minded that I have to engage Thomas to remember things for me sometimes,' which, indeed, was literally true.

Afterwards the lady told the story against herself, as a striking instance of tact on the part of her servant.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

The Ass and the Fox.

One day, as an Ass was journeying along toward a rich meadow, he chanced upon a Fox who was quietly sitting by the roadside.

'Ah, friend Fox,' said he, 'I was just looking for you. I am going to feed in yonder meadow.'

'But,' answered the Fox, 'You cannot get in; that meadow is reserved for animals of Beauty.'

'Exactly,' said the Ass, 'but I have a beautiful Voice. Listen—'

And he brayed loud and long. When the last echo had died away, turning to the Fox, he asked:

'Now, friend Fox, you have heard it. What does that Show?'

'It shows,' said the Fox, quietly, as he took up his cane and spring overcoat, 'that you are an Ass.'

MORAL—This fable teaches that there is always more than one way of looking at a thing.—Puck.

'Aw, Miss Helen,' smiled a sickly dude trigged out in all his paraphernalia, promenading with a young lady, 'will you be so kind as to notice my new walking stick? It is the very latest, I assuah you.'

'Ah, yes, quite handsome,' she replied taking it from his hands and twirling it gracefully.

'Aw, Miss Helen, I assuah you it is quite too becoming. I should think, an, don't you know, that you would walk with a stick.'

'I do sometimes, Mr. Fitzclarence,' she responded, and Mr. F. merely said, 'Aw, I was not awaih of it,' and went on talking.'—Merchant Traveller.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be to great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.
